

Editorial

Everything in the universe is made up of varying amounts of the four elements: earth, fire, air and water. Habitat Design Studio has made use of this subtle alchemy to design a collection whose key theme is authenticity. Warm or cold, earthy or ethereal – each element is associated with a fundamental colour, which structures the palette of this new collection with its pure and bold lines. Deep red for earth, fierce yellow for fire, crystalline blue for water and pure white for air.

This season introduces new partnerships with great designers: Tina Frey, Noé Duchaufour-Lawrance and Eugeni Quitllet. Finally, year after year, we are delighted to open up our collections to new talents: Abdelkarim Antar, Thibault Pougeoise and Julie Figueroa Zafiro, the winners of the It-Design competition. Their creations, commanded by our panel of judges, could be produced thanks to crowdfunding in partnership with My Major Company.

Our catalog is an invitation to discover what inspires our guest designers ; it also introduces some of our manufacturing techniques and takes you on the production journey, from the first sketch to the perfectly designed finished object. For more than 50 years now, we strive to offer you a simple, functional quality design to make your daily life better.

Habitat also introduces the notion of “enjoying where you live” by presenting you with two different interiors: an industrial-like New York loft and a wealthy last century house. Beautiful and functional interiors with a little extra something that won't go unnoticed. Because enjoying where you live isn't limited to the size of your space, discover 2 ways to set up your 24sq meter apartment under the roofs of Paris.

Entrance

This little space behind your front door sets the tone for the rest of your home's decor.

By definition, it's the first space you and your visitors see and it's where your guests form their first impressions of your home. This thoroughfare sees the various daily comings and goings of your family. It should give a hint as to the rest of your interior and reflect your personality - but not too much. It should also personify the pleasure of coming home. To achieve this, it should have an optimal layout and be tidy and welcoming.

Leaf, bookcase

The lightweight panels are shaped like the wings of an airplane and are slightly curved. This technique gives the Leaf bookcase a great visual elegance, while ensuring optimum strength and stability.

Design tips

Thinking about dressing up your hallway?

Here is a new idea that will brighten up the walls of your entrance: use multiple coat racks and hooks and create a tree.

Both aesthetic and functional and shaped like the branches of a tree, the Twiggly hooks are ideal for this set-up. We mix and match different sizes for a fun and elegant look. We start by bringing the pieces together on the floor. Then we take pictures to get an idea of the overall look. Then, we just fix the hooks on the wall, starting with the trunk and then adding the branches from bottom to top. For a more dramatic effect, choose to paint the wall in a dense color to highlight the tree's features. Here is a pretty and practical solution to hang our joyful mess!

Kitchen

In the past the kitchen was relegated to the task of preparing meals but this has all changed and the kitchen has become a favourite living space.

It's where we cook, eat, squabble and set the world to rights. And because we spend so much time here, it's important to get the decor just right. Especially given our new lifestyles: dishes are no longer hidden away but can be glimpsed through a glazed sideboard or are arranged on a bookshelf. Storage bottles with graphic designs are grouped together on work surfaces. Stainless steel, cast iron and wooden cooking utensils are also on display to add to the atmosphere and create the perfect combination of style and functionality that was so important to Habitat's founder home.

A perfect french breakfast

France is known all over the world for its pastries and breads and especially the French baguette.

Here are a few tips to make yourself a typical French breakfast at home:

1. Pour yourself a cup of fresh coffee or tea
2. Spread butter on a fresh baguette and add jam of your choice (strawberry, raspberry or apricot)
3. Put in a basket a selection of croissants and pains au chocolat
4. Squeeze fresh oranges for a delicious juice
Set up a nice table with plates, mugs, napkins and cutlery to enjoy your French breakfast.

Digoin
dinnerware
DESIGNED & MANUFACTURED
IN FRANCE

Since 1875, the french Manufacture Digoin has crafted everyday stoneware objects.

The Manufacture Digoin perpetuates its expertise by exclusively producing stoneware pieces to store, prepare, cook and mix food. The stoneware paste, entirely produced in its workshops, is created using natural mineral materials from France. Each piece is unique as every single one is crafted and enamelled by hand. These traditional pieces stand the test of time, and are adapted to more modern uses.

Taidu, English porcelain dinnerware

For an elegant and simple table, choose the Taidu collection, a line of tableware in fine bone china. Known for its high levels of whiteness and translucency, and for its hardness and high impact resistance, it is recognized as one of the finest and most precious china that exist. A variety of plates and cups make the collection.

Dining room

This is where we laugh, have long conversations and host parties and dinners for friends.

Your dining room is strategic. It's a place for sharing and pleasure, which should have its own aesthetic identity: patterned tableware, mismatched chairs, a designer ceiling light, patterned wallpaper, etc. Feel free to add character to this room to create a warm and welcoming atmosphere.

Losange, table

Designer Guillaume Delvigne followed the principles of marquetry and created the Losange table thus successfully taking up the challenge of turning a simple table extension into an elegant wood paneling decor. "Here, the idea is to highlight the solid wood material so the tabletop looks wider than its base. The round edges of the table help accomplish this effect. Its feet are also pushed back in at a strong enough angle so that you can't see them."
Guillaume Delvigne

Living room

Today's living rooms are adapting to our new lifestyles, which could be summed up by: the quest for multi-functionality.

The living room is the original multi-purpose room: it's where we rest, eat, drink, talk, read, sleep, play games, work, etc. Therefore, it is important to create a cosy welcoming space. A comfortable sofa, a designer table, the clever use of lamps, functional storage units, etc. A well-thought out decor will transform your living room into a veritable haven of well-being, which is both pleasant to look at and practical.

Filo shelves

A great design classic returns.

The perfectly symmetrical FILO shelving unit is comprised of two chrome-plated steel tube mounts into which two large compartments are inserted. This piece of furniture embodies Habitat's philosophy: to create objects imbued with simplicity and authenticity that are functional yet attractive.

Flat woven rugs

Flat woven fabric is made of 2 threads that intertwine perpendicularly.

Vertical threads are called warp threads and horizontal threads are called weft threads. The loom is the name of the machine used to carry out this technique. It keeps the warp threads in place, while the weft threads pass through them.

Design tips

Your wall: a work of art

An empty wall and a surface that lacks character? Rather than using a common and classic paint base, go for a "construction style" look.

To achieve this effect, apply a first layer of paint in the color of your choice, using a large roll. Make sure to use masking tape to isolate the area where you just painted. Let it dry and remove the tape. Add a second layer of paint. Paint vigorously and randomly over the first layer. Remember that simple accessories and furniture made of natural materials go better with this bold look.

Lofa, sofa

This winter, Habitat is reissuing a great classic from designer Andrew Davies exclusively for Habitat: the Lofa sofa. For a more graphic and contemporary visual effect, we chose a two-tone fabric. Here, the blue and the gray create subtle chromatic and graphic contrasts.

Chandelier pendant lamp

A contemporary chandelier.

"The original idea was to recreate a 1950's chandelier using metallic tubes as the main material and ending in these 14 luminous points. We replaced the bulbs with more modern LEDs, which enabled us to reduce the overall dimensions of the chandelier and give it a more contemporary look. It is now reminiscent of a tree with perfectly structured "branches", which give off a harmonious light." Inma Bermúdez.

Acrylic or wax photo print in partnership with AFP

In the photo category, art photography and photojournalism are widely acclaimed these days. The latter is certainly part of our cultural heritage, but its artistic recognition remains part of a process of producing images in order to report on current events. Without discarding the value of the use of these images, the photo journalist now aspires to artistic recognition. That is simply because each picture is unique and is a witness to history. This all makes sense also because a photo professional has the eye to capture the present moment. The idea is also to make art photography available in our homes: as a result, the Crystal Gallery and Habitat have partnered to put together an exhibition of these photographs! This unique partnership gave rise to an exclusive collection called "Look at the world as it is". Habitat has also chosen to display this collection on Plexiglas to give the photos more brightness, light and visibility.

Home office

The time when we read our emails perched on the end of the sofa is over - thankfully - and a comfortable office is now a must-have addition to every home.

Less used than the bedroom or the living room, the office is the one place in the home that should reflect your personality as well as meeting your needs. However, not everyone has enough space for a separate office - don't panic! An office space can be easily integrated into another room e.g. the living room or bedroom, or by capitalising on unused space (under the stairs, in the hall, in the corridor, etc.). Whether you're a full-time freelancer or a Sunday blogger, opt for the stylish lines of a classic desk or create a bespoke work area for yourself.

Design tips

A multitude of wisely aligned light fittings

Gone is the large chandelier in the middle of a room. Now, suspensions accumulate and they mix together for both graphic and poetic atmosphere.

Above a large work table or dining room table, or even in a long corridor, this alignment of small colored light fittings can brighten up a space and make it unique and fun. For a trendier look, we use multiple Aldgate light fittings of different colors.

For a more sophisticated and graphic look, you can also choose to use just one color. Make sure you keep the same height and the same distance between each piece.

Poise lamp

A minimalist desk lamp.

Poise revisits the traditional office reading lamp with a twist by using the materials of ash and iron. This LED version combines high-quality lighting with low energy consumption. Extremely fine and discreet, this lamp will add a designer touch to any office.

Bathroom

What's your dream bathroom? A haven of well-being, an intimate en suite affair or a large family bathroom?

Even though bathrooms have certain codes and rules in terms of layout, there's no reason why you can't add a personal touch. Use functional storage to declutter, soft and stylish towels/linen, modular lighting, scented candles, etc. In terms of accessories, opt for beautiful materials such as granite, marble, chrome or glass. Feel free to add other home accessories such as vases and candlesticks.

Design tips

Two-colored flooring

Are you tired of your floor? Is it too dull?
Are your brick color tiles boring?

This simple and inexpensive trick will help you revamp a room in a snap: create a two-colored floor that plays the contrast between raw and sophisticated in a very contemporary way.

To do this, choose an area on your floor (here, a large square) and use masking tape to isolate it. Inside the square, apply the paint in the color of your choice. Make sure to use resistant and suited paint for this project. Remove the tape and you're all set! Make sure you choose a color that matches nicely with the original material.

Bedroom & bedding

A reflection of the inner you.

A veritable extension of yourself, which plays around with different styles and codes, your bedroom deserves a decor worthy of its name. Especially as we are spending more and more time in our bedrooms, which have become so much more than a simple place to lay our heads. Today, we want our bedrooms to be a haven of well-being, familiarity and safety. So, opt for soft lighting, soothing colours and beautiful materials to create a harmonious decor to ensure you have a great night's sleep and wake up feeling ready for anything.

Design tips

A super-simple screen wall

Widely used by interior designers, screen walls partition your space to make it look spacious and unique.

Here, the screen wall is made of raw wood beams that subtly isolate the bedroom from the bathroom. Lined up on the floor, the Brick modules below, come in different colors and are used as storage boxes, an area to put away books.

Moving in a small apartment (24m²)

Many of us are living in cramped conditions. But it doesn't have to be at the expense of your interior decoration ambitions!

Get modular

To get the best out of your small living space (while waiting to upsize), think modular and flexible! A console table can double up as a desk, a side table can become a bedside table, a sofa can turn into a bed, bookshelves on wheels can be used as room-dividers... To organise your living space, there is a wide range of really clever furniture out there that can be transformed in the blink of an eye.

Get moving

Highlight areas around windows to let your home 'breathe' and open up as much space as possible so you can move about freely. The first solution, if possible, is to install an open kitchen preferably with an island that can be used as a dining table and bar, creating a natural space for entertaining. Do away with the door between the hall and the living room and replace it with a sliding panel. This will not only save considerable space but will add a touch of Japanese style to your home.

Lighting

Poorly lit small spaces appear even smaller. Aim to use multiple sources of light in your apartment to create an illusion of space. On the walls nothing works better than white but you can create perspective and depth by playing around with colour to draw the eye to open spaces and vanishing points. Opt for multiple sources of light.

Version 1, day

We give priority to living-dining room.

Here we've chosen to make best use of the living space with a sofa-bed and put it in front of another sofa with a more striking design to make a room divider. Placing it against a sideboard will allow you to store whatever you like and free up some space for use as a dining area.

If you're having friends round, opt for floor cushions like pouffes and curved armchairs to give your living room an intimate and relaxed atmosphere. Equip yourself with nesting tables or several small tables of the same size and simply adapt them to the space available and the number of guests. To seat everybody comfortably for eating, you can't beat low Japanese-style stools, which can also serve as bedside tables or extra console tables to put a vase or keep some books on.

To decorate, why not incorporate several rugs to separate different areas and liven up your sofa with contrasting cushions. A floor lamp, a few table lamps, candles - that's all there is to it!

Version 1, night

Lightweight and no difficulty to move around, small tables easily make way for your bed at bedtime. When choosing a sofa-bed, two key criteria should be considered: firstly, how comfortable it is to sleep on, and secondly, how easy the mechanism is to open and close.

Among the different levels of comfort on offer, it is therefore advisable to choose one suitable for everyday use, with a sufficiently thick mattress and a base that will ensure a good night's sleep. Tidy up your desk ready for a good night's sleep.

Version 2, day & night

We give priority to the bedroom

For those who prefer a proper bed, we recommend creating a sleeping area, cleverly bounded by a book case. Focus on finding quality bed linen and a selection of scatter cushions to liven it all up.

To make your bookcase look more stylish, cover the ends with retro wallpaper in muted colours. Introduce small bedside lamps, candlesticks and vases to make it feel more cosy.

Arranging things this way offers new possibilities for your sofa, which is no longer serving as a bed. Emphasis now falls on the look and the design of the sofa. Some of the available space has been filled with little nesting tables in pastel colours. We've put our favourite decorative accessories on display on a console table placed against the wall and decorated the walls themselves to make the place warmer and cheerful.

Design tips

One shelf, many possibilities

If your space is small, think modularity and versatility.

The Cleo shelf has differently sized boxes and can be set up both vertically and horizontally. Here, the shelf works as a divider between the bedroom and the living-room. For greater effect, customize the shelf with graphic and modern wrapping paper or wallpaper samples: pick and choose what you like according to your mood!

Design & know-how

Behind every product is a design, and behind every design, a person.

Behind every product lies the creative mind of the designer. Behind each creation also lies a phase of execution and production. Habitat designs furniture that are always loyal to the drawings of their designers and integrate the many challenges involved with their manufacturing.

We constantly renew our techniques and always carefully study the choice of our materials to cultivate an innovative approach. With our design and expertise, we are seeking to achieve the same goal: to provide you with beautiful and practical quality products.

Ikenna, furniture designed by Pierre Favresse

In Pierre's opinion, design enriches our everyday lives through an approach that is highly contemporary with our surroundings.

Biography

Born in 1979, Pierre Favresse studied artistic crafts at the Ecole Boulle and continued his studies in design at the Ecole Nationale Supérieure des Arts Décoratifs in Paris. In 2010, he was called upon to take over as the head of the Habitat Design Studio. Since then, Pierre Favresse has worked to reinstate one of the key factors responsible for the renown of the brand and its founder, Sir Terence Conran: "l'utile peut être beau, le beau accessible" (useful can be beautiful and beauty affordable).

Inspiration

Ikenna is a model of balance and minimalist elegance. Made of natural oak, the window lays on a black lacquered base whose cross-shaped handles give it a sophisticated look.

Stone, chair designed by Eugeni Quitllet

For Eugeni, his partnership with Habitat is an exciting adventure. The brand has influenced his relationship with design since he began his career as a designer.

“At Habitat, you’re guaranteed to find a great selection of everyday products”.

Biography

Born on 17 April 1972, Eugeni Quitllet is a Catalan designer and graduate of the Barcelona “La Llotja” art school. Kartell, Lexon, Christoffle and Air France all call on the services of this self-proclaimed “Disonador” - a contraction of the Spanish words for “designer” and “dreamer”. From objects to space, Eugeni Quitllet is one of the few designers capable of giving us a different perspective of our surroundings.

Inspiration

The chair represents two stones that look like they’ve been shaped by the movement of the waves. A ring surrounds both stones and holds them together. The Stone chair is made of one piece of polypropylene and is durable, lightweight, easy to move, and perfectly suited to contemporary interiors.

Coast, dinnerware designed by Tina Frey

Each piece is first designed and sculpted by hand using clay by Tina Frey. Once this has been done, Tina Frey creates a mould for each element by hand.

“My surroundings in San Francisco inspired the Coast collection. The different shades of blue in the water, and the sand make me think of natural colors and smooth shapes.”

Biography

Tina Frey Designs was founded in 2007 by Tina Frey in San Francisco, California. Originally, the aim of the company was to combine the numerous different creative interests of the founder and to create a collection of functional and simple resin accessories. Her assignments and her passion for adventure have led her to make many journeys around the world, and she has drawn inspiration for her creations from these travels.

Inspiration

The pieces are hand carved in clay before they're cast in resin in a customized mold. Tina Frey loves the Japanese concept of “wabi sabi”, which advocates a return to simplicity and to peaceful sobriety, where one can recognize and feel the beauty of imperfect, fleeting and unpretentious things.

My Mia, chair designed by Noé Duchaufour-Lawrance

Influenced by the legacy of art nouveau, Noé Duchaufour-Lawrance not only relies on the universality of nature to impose shapes that make sense, but also asserts that the idea of a total work of art is now fundamental to contemporary design.

“I wanted to recreate my connection to nature with my own hands”.

Biography

Born in the South of France in 1974, Noé Duchaufour-Lawrance has established himself as a multidisciplinary designer. He wanted to recreate his connection to nature with his own hands. Later on, producing emotion through the usefulness of shapes became an evident approach for a man who loves beauty as much as necessity, and harmony as much as responsibility. He often compares his approach to the “niwa” - the small garden found at the heart of traditional Japanese homes.

Inspiration

Solid wood legs together with the seat's sleek lines refer to the poetic image of a delicate leaf hanging from the sturdy branches of the tree carrying it. The My Mia chair is a design object that interacts with its environment: the base's airy structure lets you look at it endlessly.

186

Milk collection imagined by Milk family

Milk magazine and Habitat are collaborating to tell a universal story based on two delightfully retro, comforting and inspiring themes for children, the house and the rabbit.

Biography

Behind Milk and Milk Decoration is a woman and a mother - well placed to be at the centre of this partnership. In 2003, Isis-Colombe Combreaux launched Milk with the hope of introducing other families to wonderful new things. In September 2012, she founded the Milk Decoration collective. The aim of this group of young design lovers is to amaze, amuse and inspire contemporary society - like a veritable cabinet of curiosities.

Inspiration

Themes inspired by fairytales and children's imaginations, playful prints in the most on-trend colours, not to mention natural materials... Milk and Habitat understand modern families and their preference for originality and exclusivity. Balancing children's hopes and dreams with the aesthetic expectations of parents.

These designer also make your habitat

Sir Terence Conran, founded Habitat on Fulham Road in 1964

In 1964, the young designer and furniture restorer Terence Conran had an intuition that the world and our lifestyles were changing - and so began the story of Habitat. Founded by a designer, fifty years later the company remains faithful to his philosophy: utility should be beautiful and beauty should be affordable.

In order to combine these qualities while constantly innovating, Habitat regularly turns to guest designers. Designers who bring a breath of fresh air and innovation to our collections with their talent and the richness of the dialogue they establish with all our teams.

“It is just as fruitful and fascinating to work with promising young designers from around the world as it is to work with well-established professionals who are sometimes legends of design. Younger designers bring an indispensable creative spontaneity and older designers contribute the necessary professionalism and rigour. From textile design to furniture ranges, not to mention exceptional decorative items, this season once again we are proud to produce designs by thirty designers, which coordinate perfectly with the collection designed by our studio.” Pierre Favresse

More than 1,300 participants submitted their creations following the call for projects launched by Habitat in partnership with MyMajorCompany. Thanks to the competition, Habitat is launching three young designers and has given them the chance to have their it-Design produced.

“At the Habitat Design Studio, we want to take new ways of life into account. This call for projects also presented an incredible opportunity for Habitat to encourage new talents and, above all, new visions, different visions.”

Pierre Favresse,
Head of the Habitat Design Studio

The IBN vases, designed by Abdelkarim Antar

Inspired by the Arab ingenious irrigation system, IBN is a set of three separate and complementary vases. The thousand year old irrigation system - “Ibn” means “son of” in Arabic - allows us to reflect on the notion of inheritance. With their clean design, the vases are made of porcelain : the new material modernizes the traditional old method of transferring a trickle of water from one vessel to another in order to naturally irrigate the three components. The water flowing is like a vital bond that links memory to culture, parents to their offspring and society to its history. The muted and soothing sound of water wanders from one vase to another; like a musical poem acknowledging the passing of time.

The Funky lamp, designed by Thibault Pougeoise

The Funky lamp is a fun and funny desk lamp. Why not have a fun lamp on your desk? This lamp comes with a base (base + light diffuser) and an hat made of silicone, which itself, comes in four shapes of different colors. With this accessory, you can create a collection of unique and original lamps.

The Libertad sofa, designed by Julie Figueroa Zafiro

The Libertad sofa is designed to meet the different postures that you naturally adopt when seating on a sofa. The sofa looks like a flower: the back unfolds and takes the shape of your seat. By a set of variable volumes, it travels across the floor to take on a cross-legged position and then extends over the seat so you can lie or sit down. “Libertad is a new type of sofa: it’s an invitation to be lazy and to take time to relax.”

know-how made in Portugal

Chicken brick

Ceramics have been crafted since pre-historic times. This material is obtained by transforming clay (keramos in Greek, which means "potter's earth") through firing it at a temperature ranging from 600 to more than 1300 degrees.

© Mélina Vernant

Cleaning

After being trimmed meticulously to remove excess material, the chicken brick is cleaned with a sponge.

The mold

Made in plaster, the original mold also known as the master mold, is the final prototype. For the production phase, it is duplicated in multiple copies.

Located at the heart of the municipality of Leiria, Portugal, renowned throughout the country for its very light, fine white clay, the small village of Pedreiras has been home since 1886 to numerous potters' workshops. It is here that the Chicken brick collection is made, putting terracotta pieces through an ancestral five-step process.

First step: extraction of raw clay

In its pure state, clay is white in colour. But depending on the earth, it can naturally be grey, red or ochre. Once collected, the clay is kneaded then dried and cleaned.

Second stage: casting

The clay is pressed into casts which give it identical shape and size.

Third step: firing

The key moment in which the paste is transformed into pottery and retracts slightly under the effects of a temperature of 900 degrees.

Drying

The chicken brick dries for 12 hours between each step.

Baking

The chicken brick is baked for 8 hours in an oven at high temperature. The ceramic material becomes waterproof when it is baked in the oven.

The material

The clay is extracted from the quarries of northern Portugal. Its color can vary from white to red ochre.

George collection, made by tunisian craftsmen

This is a love story of man and the olive tree in Tunisia.

What goes into olive wood:
an artisanal expertise

Habitat has teamed up with a Tunisian manufacturer supported by UNIDO (United Nations Industrial Development Organisation) for its new utensils collection. They are made by craftsmen from Sidi Bouzid as part of a corporate citizenship initiative.

Olive trees have been a fundamental part of Mediterranean culture for thousands of years.
The woodwork of olive wood is an age-old,
artisanal art passed down from generation to generation.

Everything this legendary tree produces is used by man. The Sfax and Sidi Bouzid regions are the main areas of production.

The olive wood used to make the utensils is derived from trees that are no longer productive and immediately replaced. Once uprooted, the tree is cut into logs and dried outdoors in the sun before being covered.
The artisans then select the highest quality logs, and adapt their size to the product they wish to make. These are then cut into pieces to be worked.

The wood is then sculpted, sanded, polished and soaked in an oil bath by artisans, both men and women, from Sidi Bouzid. The different utensils are finally left to dry, before being varnished with an oil coating. The finished product will then take off on a journey before settling in your kitchens.

The Daborn Armchair, made in Spain

The manufacturing process of our Daborn armchair combines high technology with craftsmanship. The key stages of manufacturing the armchair...

Choosing the wood to build the frame:
The structure of the chair is made of pine from Galicia or Sweden. To eliminate all moisture, the wood should dry for at least a month. The pieces of wood are then cut by machines, using digital technology to make them perfectly identical. In the end, we remove the wood graining to ensure the structure's sturdiness. The structure is then mounted by craftsmen on-site.

Cutting the foam:
For high precision, the foam is cut using a digitally-controlled machine.

The seat:
NEA technology is used for the seat webbing. High-tech materials make the seat highly comfortable and provide an extremely durable support - more reliable than springs or elastic straps, which respectively can crack or sag overtime.

Cutting the fabric:
A highly accurate digital computerized cutting system, without any previous hand-drawn layout, can cut the fabric to the nearest tenth of a millimeter. This tool can also detect potential damage in the fabric before it is being cut.

Sewing the fabric:
The sewing of the fabric is handmade by professionals treating each piece with the appropriate care. The finishing details are also all made by hand.

Our selection of products designed and manufactured in France

The French know-how

The French way of life's always been part of the brand's DNA. The brand was historically founded in London by Terence Conran, who's always been inspired by the south of France: back then, the happy colors of the markets of Provence and French cuisine brought joy and generosity to a rather dull Great Britain.

In recent years, Habitat has thus naturally launched the "Made in France" initiative by bringing back into the country the production of certain products such as the Ribbon lamp. When social design and collaborations with French companies were possible, Habitat relied on their expertise.

198 Our selection of everyday objects are practical, fonctionnal and made in France.

The Digoin stoneware dishes line, made by the Digoin factory located along the Canal du Centre in Burgundy. Since 1875, the factory makes stoneware pieces to prepare, bake and cook. Each piece is unique because they're all shaped and glazed by hand.

The Ribbon lamp in thermo-coated steel, made by the Poncin metal shop, located in Tarare near Lyon. The Ribbon lamp is made of a single folded sheet of steel shaped like a ribbon. This winter, the Ribbon Lamp is dressed in lace. The micro-perforated steel plays with darkness and light.

The Limoges porcelain Cypraea tableware line, made by the Jaques Pergay factory, located in Limoges. Each piece is hand-modeled using the factory's proven expertise. The Limoges porcelain, a high-quality material, is both refined and transparent as highlighted by its quilted checkerboards.

The Carrare table linen line, made in collaboration with textile factory Le Jacquard Francais, and produced in their workshop located in the town of Gerardmer in the Vosges region. Since 1888, Le Jacquard Francais has been renowned for their ancestral expertise and the quality of their unique weaving. Each piece is reversible: marble-like light gray on one side and dark gray on the other.

The Mallet- Stevens chair in steel, made by the Romaire factory, located in the town of Arnas, in the Rhône-Alpes region. Designed in the 30s by famous architect Robert Mallet-Stevens, the chair embodies the Bauhaus style to perfection with its clean and functional design. It is now being reissued by Habitat.

The Ameli tableware line in tempered glass, made by the glass factory La Rochère, located in the Burgundy, Franche-Comté region. Founded in 1475, La Rochère is the oldest Art de France glass factory and is looking to carry on the tradition and expertise of their master glassmakers.

The Synthe comforters in synthetic material, made by the Dodo company located in the Moselle region. Ideal for people with allergies or asthma, these comforters are treated with an anti-dust mite oil base that is non-irritating, hypoallergenic and made of 100 % natural organic ingredients.

These products reflect Habitat's effort to promote production in France and to export the French lifestyle and savoir-faire beyond their borders. The innovative techniques and quality of these collections aim to impose Habitat as a permanent leader of French expertise in design.

The different variety of woods of Habitat furniture

Our selection of wood is a guarantee of our products' quality. All originating from Europe, Habitat uses oak, beech, ash and walnut.

200

Origin Europe. Northern hemisphere.

Growth Very slow: 100 to 150 years
Hardness Dense and hard wood
Density 730 kg/m³

Uses Large oak planks have been popular since the Middle Age. They were used for refined marquetry, but also to build ships until the 19th century in Europe. Today, oak is still commonly used in carpentry, flooring, and wood veneer production.

Aesthetic properties Most popular wood in France - Heterogeneous with beautiful and varied textures - golden marbling.

Durability Very durable. Resistant to insects and fungi thanks to its high tannin content. Shock and climate resistant. Ages well.

Color Straw yellow to light brown

Quality ★★★★★☆
Price Index: 100

Origin Europe. Ash is found alongside waterstreams, on shaded slopes in the lowland forests or in valleys with rich undergrowth.

Growth Grows fast
Hardness Soft to tender
Density 680 kg/m³

Uses In the Middle Age, castles were surrounded by ash trees that were planted to supply spears and javelins. Now, it is used in carpentry and cabinetmaking (depending on the quality of the wood).

Aesthetic properties creamy white to pale brown. Can take on a blackish color. Has a straight grain and a coarse texture.

Durability Unfit to outside jobs. High impact resistance.

Color White, pearly, slightly pink. It darkens once cut.

Quality ★★★★★☆
Price Index: 50

Origin Europe. Beech is plentiful in lowland areas, in the northern part of France, in Normandy in particular.

Growth Slow
Hardness Intense and hard wood
Density 680 kg/m³

Uses beech can be turned, dyed and polished. Provided it has been carefully dried, beech is now used in carpentry. Ideal for base furniture.

Aesthetic properties This light wood is of homogenous appearance with a lot of small rings of equal diameter on its surface.

Durability Little resistance against bad weather and fungi.

Color Greyish white to reddish yellow. Once cut, it takes on a reddish color.

Quality ★★★★★☆
Price Index: 30

Habitat only uses high quality noble wood such as beech, ash, walnut and especially oak. All originating from Europe to guarantee our products' quality.

100% of the wood we use comes from farmed forests.

We mainly work with wood veneer. The different wood-based panels help protect solid wood from temperamental climates. The veneer technique also provides the ability to create fine wood furniture that is sometimes impossible to get in large quantities. Wood becomes affordable and remains aesthetically pleasing while giving a dimensional stability to the product. We also limit the import of exotic woods: to teck wood.

THIS TYPE OF WOOD IS NOT USED BY HABITAT.

Origin Eastern India and Burma. Grows mainly in tropical countries.

Growth Fast
Hardness Rather tender
Density 550kg/m³

Uses Sculpture, engraving. Also used in cabinetmaking for furniture veneer.

Aesthetic properties fine grain. Lots of stains and knots.

Durability Moderately resistant, even perishable depending on the environment (insects and weather conditions).

Color Light brown. Close to walnut with yellow highlights.

Quality ★★☆☆☆☆
Price Index: 50

Origin Europe - Dauphiné, Savoie, south west of the Massif Central. Walnut grows in isolated areas and in full light (Its leaves and roots contain a toxic substance called "juglone").

Growth Grows fast
Hardness Soft
Density 660kg/m³

Uses Walnut was introduced in Italy by the Romans. Today, walnut is renowned for rifle butts and used to make high-end furniture.

Aesthetic properties Black-marble appearance, tight, sharp and mixed grain. Noble wood.

Durability The wood is naturally impact resistant, has a beautiful finish and does not break.

Color Light to dark brown.

Quality ★★★★★★

THIS TYPE OF WOOD IS NOT USED BY HABITAT.

Origin India. Not to be confused with rosewood.

Growth Fast
Hardness Very hard
Density 870kg/m³

Uses Mainly used in medium quality furniture veneer (as opposed to rosewood).

Aesthetic properties Often has a lot of defects: stains, insect damage, a few small vessels clogged with resin deposits.

Durability Unsustainable unless the wood has been carefully dried to avoid cracks and deformations. If a piece of furniture is made in India, it can lose its shape or break once it arrives in France because of changes in humidity. Breaks easily. Low impact resistance

Textiles

Our choice of textile for bed linen ranges. Habitat only uses natural and luxurious materials for their bed linen collection. High quality raw materials and elaborated weaving techniques make our creations not only beautiful but also comfortable and resilient.

203

COTTON PERCALE

The quality of the fabric depends mainly on the number of warp and weft threads by the cm². The higher the number, the tighter the weave and the most durable and soft the fabric is.

Percale refers to the closely woven cotton made of long and thin threads. Bedsheets are in percale when they reach 78 thread/cm². Our percale bed linen is made from superior quality 180 thread count Egyptian cotton. Long staple Egyptian cotton makes for a finer yarn and a better quality fabric that gains flexibility and softness over time. The tight weave makes the fabric very resistant.

SATIN

Soft and luxurious to the touch, the satin weave is subtle and barely visible.

Sateen cotton is 100% natural. It is made from high quality combed cotton fibers. Its ultra tight weave (between 120 and 600 thread count) makes it a silky and refined fabric. There are two Sateen cotton lines at Habitat: Bright Sateen, a 120 thread count Portuguese Sateen cotton and Sateen Deluxe, a 600 thread count Egyptian cotton.

LINEN

A naturally crumpled fabric for a chic and relaxing bedroom.

Made from the stalks of flax plant, linen is a natural and breathable fabric. Naturally airy, linen helps regulate your body temperature. It is refreshing to wear in the summer and very comfortable in the winter. It is also antibacterial and naturally hypoallergenic. If washed a few times, it'll become softer and won't go fluffy. Naturally crumpled, it doesn't need to be ironed. Lastly, it is organically grown and entirely recyclable.

JACQUARD

The Jacquard is a loom and was developed in 1801, by Joseph Marie Jacquard, from Lyon. We relied on a historical expertise to create this collection of high-quality bed linen.

Jacquard is a very specific weaving technique. It is the crossing of thousands of warp and weft threads. What's most particular about Jacquard fabric is the great precision of the drawing of its thread. This superior quality fabric is heavy and doesn't crumple easily.
