Living

Living in one's house is above all else the creation of a space that mirrors who you are.

It's about moving into an apartment that may seem impersonal at first, then making it into something unique, just like you, to share with those you love. It's about creating a warm space where you can take the time to invite guests into a welcoming living room or around a well-laid table. It's also about creating a space where conviviality rhymes with intimacy or a cocoon where you can take a moment just for you, away from the hum of the everyday to dream or work, rest or play.

Not just living in your home, but living your home, is the magic formula to transforming your interiors – a home you don't just occupy, but one in which you live out your life.

50 years of heart

Habitat saw the light of day on the Fulham Road in London in 1964. It was the brainchild of a young visionary designer named Terence Conran who wanted to improve the everyday and render the ordinary extraordinary through simple, modern and accessible products.

50 years later, new blood is perpetuating this philosophy through Habitat's "ELEVEN A.M." collection, named after one of Edward Hopper's masterpieces.

Reflecting the subtle alchemy between the creation of industrial products and artisanal know-how, we have concentrated our efforts on quality, comfort and the refinement of shape, while lending acute attention to process and materials so as to offer you the best possible experience.

This year, to anchor Habitat to its rich history and re-connect it with valued principles such as those of modernity, elegance and sharing, we have invited three big names to help us create some of our collection's most prestigious pieces... After all, what would a birthday be without some guests?

Within the pages of this catalogue you will discover an all-new porcelain tea set designed by Sir Terence Conran that will bring delicacy and refinement to any tea-time. You will not remain untouched by the timeless form, elegance and perfect proportions of the Robert Mallet Stevens collection – pieces from one of the icons of modern 20th century design re-edited just for you. Last but not least, two Michelin star French chef Thierry Marx has also done us the honour of joining forces with Habitat to offer you veritable professional quality tools and utensils for your kitchen.

Today's homes are cradles of love, sharing and emotion that are evolving towards spaces where activities intersect, interconnect and bounce off each other. At Habitat you will always find solutions for your ever-evolving needs... whether that be to make a small space grow, or to give an all-new personality to the spaces you live in.

Use this catalogue in whatever way comes to mind... whether that be to create, imagine, invent, or decorate. It should be a valuable source of ideas and creativity that will enable you to invent an interior that's a reflection of who you are.

Pierre Favresse
Head of Design

The History of Habitat 50 years

1964-1984

The Umbrellas of Cherbourg had just won the Palme D'or at the Cannes Film Festival, while the other side of the Channel was still awash in Beatlemania. However, the designer Terence Conran chose "You Really Got Me" by The Kinks for the opening of Habitat on London's Fulham Road on 11 May 1964. Pioneer of a new art of living, the brand featured a simple, function-based design with a focus on conviviality, blending genres, authenticity and affordability, and introduced the concept of self-service decoration. Shopping at Habitat has always been as enjoyable as it is timeless, transcending both convention and trends. The spirit of the brand blends natural materials and primary colours, mixing streamlined Scandinavian design with exoticism from faraway lands. 1966 to 1974 heralded the arrival of the wok, dhurrie rugs, Japanese futons, paper lamps, sagbags, blinds, trestle tables, the chicken brick, the director's chair, the folding chair, the duvet and much more. In 1969, the first mail-order catalogue was launched. Seventeen points of sale were already established in England when the Habitat concept spread to other countries. The first Habitat abroad opened in 1973 on the ground floor of the Montparnasse Tower in Paris. Other shops would soon open elsewhere in France and Europe. In 1979 there were more than 105 points of sale across the world. Habitat France began to focus on design that year. In a partnership with the VIA (association to promote innovation in furnishings), the brand launched a competition that awarded designers who have come to be recognised among the best, including Bertrand Savatte and Guillaume Parent for the Pesa chair, Philippe Starck for his Ray Noble shelves, and Pascal Mourgue for the Fiesta sofa.

The 1980s oil glut left much of the western world bloodless, creating a desire for release through a massive revival of colours and patterns. However, the prevailing eccentricity, sequins and glitter were not suited to the tastes of Sir Terence Conran, who reacted with a return to 1950s design focusing on monochromatic designs and quality materials. Black, chrome and leather formed an elegant style inspired by Le Corbusier. Habitat does not follow trends... it sets them. The garden now entered Habitat as a new living area in the home. In May of 1987, the Palme D'or was awarded to Under the Sun of Satan, a film directed by Maurice Pialat. The Cannes Film Festival celebrated its 40th anniversary, and Habitat dedicated an exclusive collection to the occasion. But while Habitat was courting the 7th Art - or vice-versa - the economy took a turn for the worse. Sir Terence Conran retired in 1991 to leave Habitat expertise in the hands of the family of Ingvar Kamprad, the founder of Ikea, in 1993. The next year, Habitat celebrated its 20th anniversary. Cocooning was at its peak and eclecticism was back on the market..

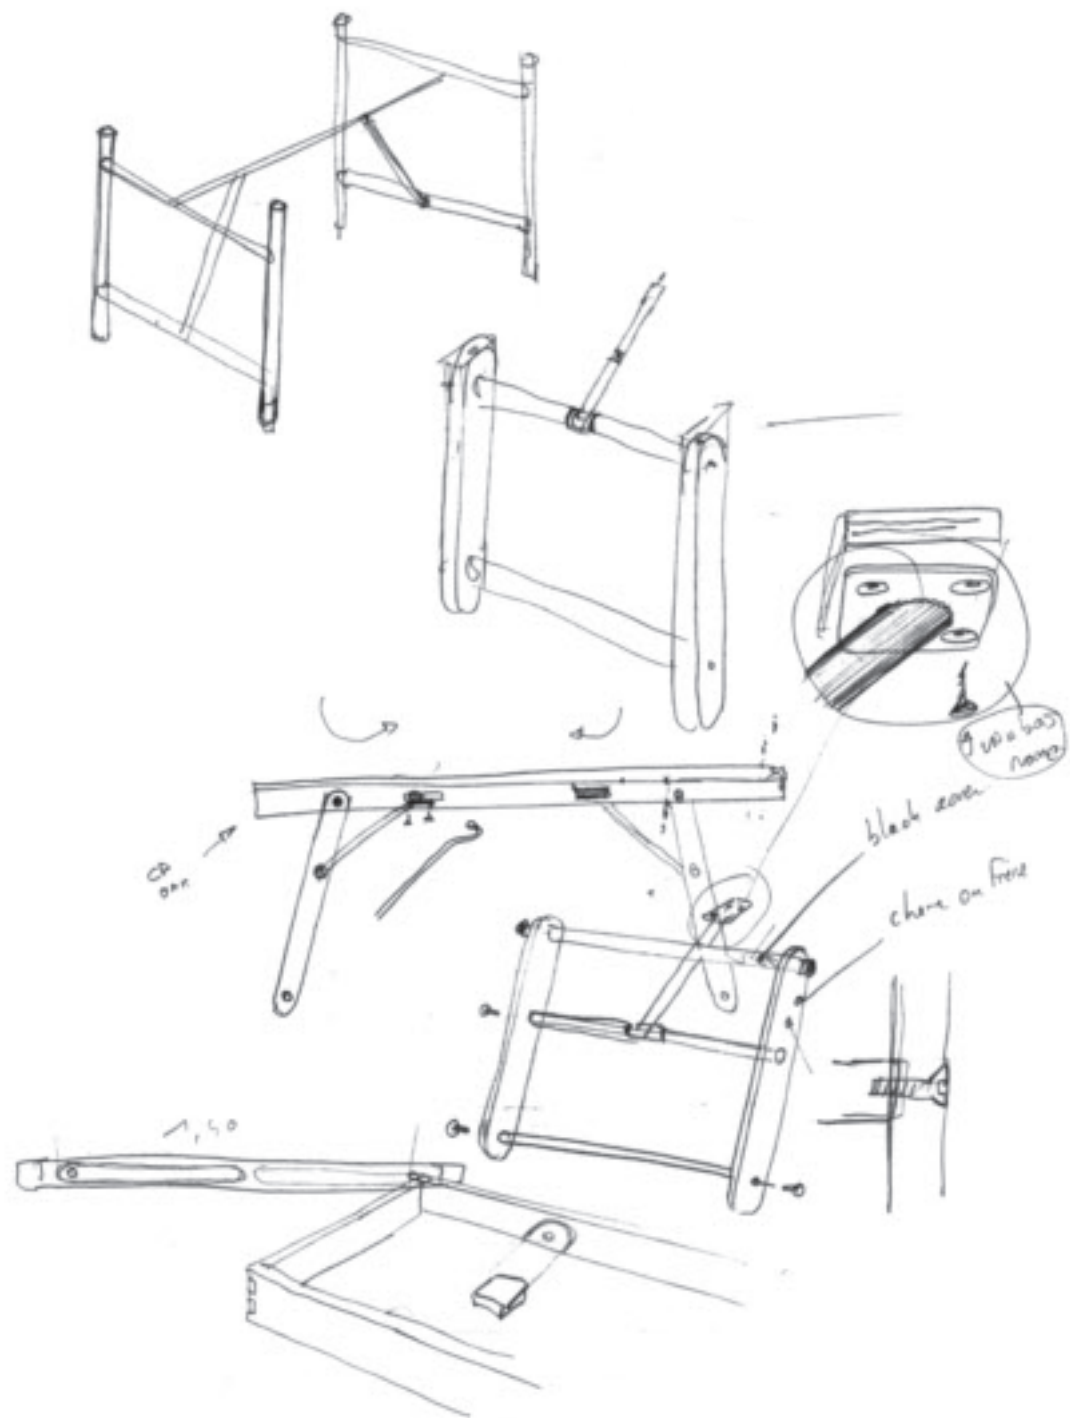

1998-2010

The cultural revolution created by the first version of the iMac appeared simultaneously with the designation of Tom Dixon as artistic director of Habitat. He created the new graphic identity "Love Your Home". With an emphasis on design and materials and an emphatic refusal of trends, Dixon revisited the Habitat spirit with a taste for boldness and sensationalism. He also brought manufacturing back into the group's own workshops, reinstating the brand's original values. With the "20th Century Legends" collection, he brought back classic pieces at affordable prices. The pieces paid tribute to great designers including Anna Castelli Ferrieri, Verner Panton, Robin and Lucienne Day and Pierre Paulin. Habitat celebrated its 40th anniversary with Dixon's VIP collection, of which the pieces are now among the brand's cult objects. Theo Williams replaced Dixon in 2008, bringing to the forefront iconic pieces such as the Spindle lamp and the Kilo table which are still sold today. While this design period was far-reaching with its avant-garde creations, it was also a time to return to the brand's original philosophy.

Since 2011

The Arab Spring ushered in a wave of revolutions in 2011. Habitat also went through its own revolution, taking on a French accent under the leadership of Hervé Giaoui, a recognised professional in furniture distribution. His idea was to bring design into everyday life in home furnishings and to cultivate affordable, classic beauty. Supported by the revival of its values, Habitat opened a 1964 Vintage Habitat space in the Saint-Ouen flea market of Paris in 2013. With Pierre Favresse as Head of Design, a synergy between the creative and manufacturing processes was born: both took place in the same studio. Taking the best from technology and expertise, today's Habitat design continues to showcase simplicity and high-quality materials. Local sourcing has made its way back into the manufacturing logic, and unprecedented collaborations and partnerships have become part of the creative process. Habitat is celebrating its 50th anniversary with a new outlook, exploring new horizons within - and beyond - its own frontiers. Two new concept stores will be inaugurated in Paris in September 2014: Habitat Pure on Avenue de Wagram, and Habitat Bedding at the Pont Neuf store. A book to be published by Editions du Chêne will review the fifty-year history of this beloved brand: one that has always been in step with the times.

Settling in

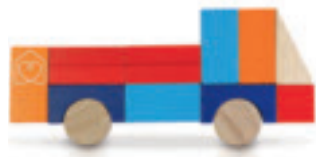

Whether you're leaving one home for another, scaling up your space when your family evolves, flying the coop and spreading your wings for the first time, changing your life, your city, or just your scenery... now more than ever mobility is the order of the day, and moving home is the perfect opportunity to create new possibilities.

Moving home first has to do with imagining your ideal interior. Then, little by little, you start to become acquainted with your space before appropriating it, finding a place for those books, those objects... trying things out, getting them wrong, starting over and finally finding that perfect place, before changing it again.

It's also about rediscovering old lives at the bottom of a cardboard box, or in the tired looking cushions of that sofa that you finally wonder why you kept so long. It's about taking the opportunity to reduce the number of possessions you have in this modern era of accumulation, thinking about storage, calm and function, before jumping headlong into your decorating.

Entertaining

Whether you're inviting people over for dinner or brunch, to have a drink or sip tea, catch up in the living room, chat in the garden, or celebrate an important event, entertaining is one of a home's primary vocations. To make those moments exceptional, Habitat has a whole series of solutions to organise and decorate your home sweet home.

Sometimes all you need is to add is an extra element to a modular sofa to create a warm environment where conversations will abound, or an extendable table so that double the guests can revel in your cooking, whatever the space available to you.

Stackable tables and chairs, trestle tables and sofa-beds, all have the potential to transform small spaces, while larger spaces will allow for entertainment-ready furniture for boundless conviviality at any time.

Mallet-Stevens re-editions

An architect, decorator and designer, Robert Mallet-Stevens (1886 – 1945) is considered one of the three pillars of the French modernism, alongside Le Corbusier and Auguste Perret. Mallet-Stevens brought a unique accent to the modern style. Less radical and more all-encompassing than his contemporaries, his architectural style reveals the influence of Josef Hoffmann (Vienna Secession), the contribution of his own experiences as a teacher, his curiosity for cinematographic art and his practical skills as a decorator. He learned valuable lessons from his various fields of work, inspiring him to perceive space, shape and lighting in a whole new way. His interdisciplinary interests brought him to advocate a complementary attitude towards architecture and interior decoration, blending beauty with function, refinement with avant-garde style, and fine materials with reinforced concrete. The villas he designed are a symbol of modern architecture, featuring roof terraces, smooth facades and simple cubic shapes. They are simultaneously living spaces, work spaces and magnificent objects to contemplate. His architectural work includes Villa Noailles in Hyères, Villa Poiret in Mézy, Villa Cavrois in Croix near Lille, and the street named after him in Paris. As a decorator, he was known for the shop fronts and displays in the Parisian boutiques of Bally and Le Café du Brésil. His love of the cinema led him to collaborate with Marcel L'Herbier. A pillar of the Modernist movement, he co-founded the U.A.M. (the French Union of Modern Artists) for which he was also the chairman.

Relaxing

At home, relaxing is often synonymous with a big comfy sofa where you can spend hours talking with friends, or just having a rest with a drink or cup or tea at arm's length and your electronic tablet balanced on your armrest.

To extend those little moments of calm after dark, don't hesitate to multiply your light sources which in turn will allow you to structure your space and adapt your ambient atmosphere. Think candles, cushions, curtains, blankets, rugs... Whether your home is zen or baroque, when it comes to relaxing, accessories become essential.

Since 1964, Habitat has been putting design at the service of your wellbeing, because kicking back also means forgetting the day's troubles in an aesthetic and functional interior created to allow you to focus in on the essentials: living, dreaming, working, sharing, entertaining...

Stop-in sofa re-edition

The Stop-in sofa was designed by Innovator, a Swedish leader in the creation of 70's design and a master in the art of working with quilted fabric and metal tubes. Imported by Habitat in 1974, the Stop-in sofa stands out due to the simplicity of its forms and the colours offered. It also easily doubles as an extra bed.

The Stop-in sofa has been re-issued in beige, brown, grey, charcoal grey, red and yellow to mark the 50th anniversary of the brand.

Twist your floors

To bring that note of colour or warmth that your interiors are missing, without having to change your entire décor, look to your floors. Layer your carpets for a cosy and original design patchwork.

The key? Make sure you stick to the same tonalities so as to maintain visual harmony and get imaginative with sizes, textures and motifs instead for the most interesting optical effect. Slip a few block colour pieces in and/or high pile rugs for a textured landscape that doesn't sacrifice on aesthetic balance.

The most important is that the result stays harmonious, playful, and, above all else, a mirror of yourself.

Your collector's spirit

Think your environment lacks some character? The perfect remedy is to inject it with a bit of your own. Make the most of your neutral interior to show your personality and create a space that will become unique. Is that wall hopelessly empty? Dress it up with images you love, mix them with family photos, pictures picked up at a flea market and, why not, cut-outs from your favorite magazines.

To ensure this unique mélange stays both joyous and elegant, make sure you bring great care to your framing. Don't hesitate to let your collector's and designer's spirits free by mixing and matching old gold-leaf frames with more modern pieces that remain in harmony with the rest of your décor. You can combine sizes, materials and orientation (horizontal or vertical) and make a trial run on your floor to give you an idea of the result before committing to the real thing.

In short, have fun. And if you're feeling artistic, go ahead and frame your installation with a painted band of colour.

Timber, a hexagon with incomparable sound

A tribute to traditional "log" speakers, Timber—whose name was inspired by the cries of Canadian loggers—has a hexagonal shape that provides an unmatched, balanced audio experience. Its natural wood and brushed aluminium design, coupled with a delicate 3D fabric, subtly conceals its advanced technology. A product created with simplicity, easy to learn and to use.

Cooking

Be it for you or for others, as an amateur or a chef, cooking has never been so in. We cook to have fun and wow our guests, no matter the size of the space we have available to us.

Once just a question of pure utility, today's kitchens are veritable living spaces. From the perfectly shaped ceramic knife to rainbow coloured mixing bowls and that cutting edge pepper mill, accessories today are taking on a definitively decorative air.

So no more hiding away in the kitchen! Invite your guests in so that your evening kicks off right with the preparation of your meal.

As I think I said one day to a Parisian journalist in a halting French accent:
"The useful can be beautiful and the beautiful accessible"

SIR TERENCE CONRAN

Terence Conran

Sir Terence Conran, Habitat's founder in 1964, has designed the Parnasse porcelain collection for the brand's 50th anniversary. This exclusive creation is inspired by the geometric shapes of the Bauhaus movement, a major reference for Terence from his beginnings as a designer.

Crockery exhibition

Addicted to cute crockery? Capable of investing a fortune in the perfect porcelain or the pattern of your dreams? Then start showing it off or, even better, exhibit it!

Forget the kitsch family heirlooms stacked on your dresser and shift your sights to your walls. To transform a dining room or kitchen into an art gallery (skipping the bathroom and the children's room), all you need to do is buy yourself a pot of good quality tiling glue before selecting the pieces of your choice and arranging them in whatever pattern speaks to you. Try the pattern out on your floor first, then cover the backs of each plate with a layer of glue and stick to the walls of your choice.

Depending on your inspiration, you may prefer geometric or fluid lines, or an equidistant pattern of plates placed one next to each-other. As always, the most important is to have fun while preserving the harmony of your overall interior decoration.

Sharing

Cutlery sliding across a porcelain plate, glasses clinking to celebrate good news, heated discussions and rapturous laughter... amongst family or friends, sharing a meal is timeless.

More than ever, the dinner table is a place to share, whether that be around a late night supper or Sunday lunch, brunch or tea, a drink or aperitif.

So that the joy of sharing arrives well before the food does (or even your guests!), take the time to create your ideal table to set the tone for your meal. For a more formal dinner, think design or tradition, while a celebratory meal will reflect the colours of your imagination. Brunches and cocktails will for their part be an opportunity to get creative while ensuring that those moments remain synonyms of generosity.

Serving dishes, plates, cutlery, glassware, accessories or table linen; white, coloured or patterned... Habitat has hundreds of products ready to help you create that perfect table.

Working

From a light-filled tranquil room with a garden or quiet street view, a place that's just for you behind a closed door that signals 'do not disturb', to a little corner of living room or bedroom where you drop your laptop and files... working from home is an art in itself!

It's also, as always, a question of space. A studio may ask for a trestle table or a portable console with storage boxes that hide all your papers and folders. If you have an entire room at your disposal on the other hand, anything goes, as long as you ask yourself the right questions.

What do you need in terms of storage? Do you prefer the chic lines of a vintage desk, or the efficiency of a modular piece of furniture? Do you need the bright light of an overhead ceiling light, or the indirect light of a desk lamp?

Habitat offers solutions to organise your space into one that fits your needs and fits your personality - one that makes working go hand in hand not only with efficiency, but with serenity too.

Pampering yourself

From when you rise at dawn to just before you slip into crisp sheets at dusk, from a moment of recovery after a session at the gym, to a moment of calm that's just for you... feel free to pamper yourself all throughout the day.

Fill your senses with the subtle aromas of jasmine and neroli, let yourself be lulled by the sound of water and envelop yourself in the natural softness of cotton, creating little bubbles of time that are just for you.

Invent the perfect environment to take care of yourself – a bathroom with visions of a spa: natural materials, muted tones and echoing crystal waters mirroring your inner tranquility. Or perhaps you'll be drawn to an older style cocoon that time's patina will lend all its warmth to, or the joy of colourful bath linen against a simple and pure backdrop.

When it comes to pampering yourself everything's possible. Let your senses guide you, because, by definition, the one who knows how best to take care of you... is you.

Pure Collection

Habitat Pure transports us to a world of fragrances. An authentic, airborne touch that provides a home with a special spirit. Inspired by travels, evocative destinations, encounters, ancestral expertise and cultures throughout the world, the PURE range showcases a wide variety of fragrances and pays tribute to luxury materials.

Pure Oriental takes inspiration from a symbol of traditional Arab architecture, the moucharaby, to redesign this candle shade

PURE CARDINAL

In traditional Chinese culture, each cardinal direction is associated with an element. Pure Cardinal is based on the theory of the four elements: air, which symbolises the east, fire, which corresponds to the south, water, which represents the west, and earth, which is associated with the north. Each element captures the beauty of raw materials in twelve distinct fragrances:

Alizé
Argile
Braise
Brume
Embruns
Forêt
Foudre
Fougères
Glacier
Lave
Pluie

Indoor street art

Like a lot of parents, you encourage your children's creativity, but sometimes find their experimentation slightly too exuberant!

To let your little ones loose with some indoor street art without having to wash down your living room walls, all you need is a pot of blackboard paint and some chalk.

This magical paint is super easy to clean and will allow you to create a space where your children will set their creativity free as often as they like.

Applied to floors, blackboards get a whole lot more fun as they put children right at the centre of their creations. A house, a garden, a hopscotch set, or even a zoo in the middle of a bedroom – their creativity won't stop surprising you!

Dreaming

Dreams are your ultimate secret garden, a garden cultivated within the confines of your bedroom. So why not create an environment conducive to your most beautiful dreams.

At the heart of your little nest you'll need the ideal mattress – one whose comfort will leave you irresistibly refreshed when you wake. And whether it's spring or foam, your back will do the deciding.

Let your instincts guide you towards the materials and colours that will soothe you so as to render the harmony of your surroundings one of your greatest allies from dusk 'till dawn.

Will you prefer the sobriety of an oak bed, or the touch of boudoir that comes from a soft headboard? Immaculate white sheets, or an explosion of colour? An afternoon nap, or late-night reading wrapped in a cosy blanket amidst a joyful mess of scatter cushions? You'll find each and every possible bedroom at Habitat.

Arty virtual divisions

When you live in a space that doesn't have any natural divisions – whether that be a loft space or a little studio where your living room doubles up as a bedroom – it's still possible to create separate spaces while avoiding bricks and mortar.

How? It's easy! Just divide your chosen spaces out with the stroke of a paintbrush from floor to ceiling.

Each space that you want to single out – whether that be a bedroom, hallway or office – is like a painting that you need to frame. Choose your colour carefully so as to create a harmonious contrast with the rest of your décor, enhancing it as you go.

Like the effect? Make it really stand out by adding a frame of neon adhesive tape, as easy to stick as it is to unstick, to add a visually strong and super modern twist!

Habitat is 50 years old. It's an opportunity for the famous French design manufacturer to look back on its exciting journey, from its creation to the present. Through 150 iconic objects, richly annotated and illustrated, as well as unpublished documents, discover the influences that shaped the brand and made design history since 1964.

This reference book is a tribute to an innovative company that has remained faithful to its founder's guiding principles:

"The useful can be beautiful, and the beautiful accessible."
